

Who We Are

Triangle Impact connects residents of the Triangle to rewarding volunteer opportunities with community agencies throughout the region. By developing and coordinating projects that are scheduled on nights and weekends and can be completed in just a few hours, we make meaningful community involvement possible for even the busiest individual.

We believe everyone has time to care. That is why we focus on short-term, hands-on projects that make volunteering accessible, guilt-free and fun. Through Triangle Impact, individuals have the flexibility to volunteer on their own terms, while partnering agencies can always depend on a corps of dedicated volunteers.

What We Do

- Develop rewarding service projects with community agencies in five (5) area counties including Wake, Durham, Orange, Johnston and Chatham.
- Promote opportunities by distributing a free monthly calendar of events.
- Coordinate every aspect of the volunteer experience, from initial sign-up to project completion.
- Cultivate service leaders in the community through volunteer training.

We believe the compassion of one person can change the culture of a community.

How We are Different

Triangle Impact is different from other volunteer organizations because we meet the needs of modern citizens by extending programs beyond simple agency referral. We guide the entire service experience, beginning with recruitment, moving through project management, and finally, addressing retention and recognition. This process for transforming an initial interest in helping into a meaningful service experience has proven effective for both adult and youth volunteers.

Why We're Important to the Community

The Triangle is fortunate - it is a region rich in resources. We have many community organizations, campuses, places of worship and corporations that devote hours and dollars to the community. Our goal is to complement those existing efforts by enabling new individuals, groups and organizations to become part of the volunteer community.
